Proud of the Climate.

Cousin John and his wife were visiting relatives in the west. It was their first trip to that part of the country, and they listened respectfully and admiringly to the descriptions of the climate given by their western host.

"There's nothing like it in the world. Why, we have days and weeks here without any moisture at night. We sit right out on our lawn until 10 o'clock and never think of taking cold. We don't have fog in the morning the way you do back in New England, either. Clear, bracing air and dry for an hour before sunrise. And then people talk about the wind in some parts of the west. I never saw any wind to compare with the east wind on Boston Common. The beauty of this climate, though, is its dry, cool, bracing atmosphere. It beats the 'old world. Yes, sir, this is the paradise for people suffering from lung or throat trouble."

The next morning the visitors awoke and looked out of their window. A fog, or something very much like a fog, such as they were familiar with "down east," held possession of the country, and they could see nothing of the scenery.

They went down to breakfast, and the host apologized for the weather; it was the first fog he had seen for two years, he assured them, and it would lift in an hour or two.

Sure enough, it did lift, and before night it was blowing a gale. The severest wind that the "oldest inhabitant" could recollect set in and lasted three days. Several houses were unroofed and considerable damage was done to growing crops.

During the visitors' stay several very severe rainstorms occurred. Only one or two evenings were dry enough to permit sitting "on the lawn." Cousin John was afflicted nearly the whole time with a hacking cough, and his wife caught cold in the head from sitting on the veranda after sunset.

The host was disgusted. "Catch me bragging again about the climate! It's as dangerous as trying to have a child 'show off.' It's sure to do just what you don't want it to. After this I don't say anything about our weather!"—Youth's Companion.

Self Possessed.

Two ladies and an invalid who were carried on a stretcher were the last passengers on the gang plank of a river steamer. The boy and one of the ladies were successfully embarked, and the other lady was crossing the plank, when it tipped and plunged her into the river. Several young men on the boat hastily removed their coats and were just ready to leap into the water, when she came up smiling, holding fast to her bag and umbrella.

"Now don't any one jump in after me," she called to the excited passengers. "I'm all right, and will float until my clothes become soaked with water. Just throw me a rope. There's no necessity for any one else to get wet."

The rope was thrown to her and she grasped it with one hand and was drawn to the side of the steamer, when she said:

"Now come one lie flat on the deck and reach down and take my bag and umbrella, and then help me out."

A young man followed her instructions and she was soon standing safe on the deck.

Requesting a porter to take her trunk immediately to a stateroom, she retired, and in a few minutes returned dry clad and cheerful to receive the congratulations of her fellow passengers, and to relieve the alarm of her lady friend, who had promptly fainted at sight of the accident.—Washington Republic.

Polly's Command to Her Father.

The following extract from "Madame Knight's Journal," written in 1725, shows that children were much the same at that time as they are now:

Thursday, about 3 in the afternoon, I set forward with neighbor Polly, a girl about eighteen years, who her father said he had been to fetch out of the Narragansett, and said they had rode thirty miles that day on a sorry lean horse with only a bag under her for a pillow, which the poor girl often complained of.

About 7 that evening we came to New London Ferry. Here, by reason of a very high wind, we met with great difficulty in getting over.

The boat took exceedingly, and our horses cattered at a very surprising rate, and set us all in a fright, especially poor Polly, who desired her father to say "So Jack" to the horse to make him stand.

But the careless parent, taking no notice of her repeated desires, she Rorod out in a passionate manner, "Pray, Ruth, father, are you deaf? Say 'So Jack' to the horse I tell you."

The Dutiful Parent obeyed saying "So Jack, So Jack," as gravely as if he had bin saying Chatchise after young Miss, who with her fright look't all the Colours of ye Rainbow.

Working for a Wife.

An infinite amount of trouble has a youth of the Philippines who is allowed to take a wife to his bosom. After the parents on both sides have come to terms the young gentleman has to work for his intended father-in-law for a certain time, very often for four years, and sometimes longer. During this time he must mind his p's and q's, for if he does anything wrong he is instantly discarded. Very frequently unscrupulous fathers make a practice of dismissing their daughters young men on the merest pretense, thus enriching themselves by their gratuitous labor.—San Francisco Examiner.

What Makes Hair Curly.

The difference between straight and curly hair is very apparent on a microscopic examination.

A hair is a hollow tube, and a straight hair is as round as a reed, while a curly hair is always flattened on both sides and curls toward one of the flat sides, never toward the edge. It is a curious and little known fact that the hair of women is coarser than that of men, as well as thicker on the scalp.—National Barber.

A BRAZEN DEADHEAD.

An Englishman secured a box in the Theater but did not see the show.

Soon after the doors opened a good looking young fellow in evening dress came up to me as I was standing in the lobby and asked me what box had been reserved for him. I said I did not know him—who was he? He said he had met the manager of the theater that afternoon, and he had been told to come to the theater and his name would be left for a box.

Unfortunately he entered too much into details. He told me that his name was Leslie, and he was a leader writer and subeditor of The Morning Wire. As I knew my manager was rather in the habit of giving these somewhat vague invitations to the theater, I thought it better to err on the side of politeness, so I gave Mr. Leslie the ticket for the box, and he thanked me and said he would go to a neighboring restaurant where his friends were dining and bring them on to the theater.

As the principal piece was commencing I saw Mr. Leslie enter the theater and go to his box accompanied by a well dressed party—two ladies and a gentleman. I thought nothing more of this, but about 10 o'clock he should come into my room but the son of the proprietor of The Morning Wire on his way from the office. Of an evening he sometimes used to drop into my room and have a chat with me. While talking with him I suddenly thought of Mr. Leslie up in a box, so I asked my friend if he knew the leader writer and subeditor. I was rather astonished when I heard there was no such name on The Morning Wire, but to make assurance doubly sure I took my friend into the theater and pointed Mr. Leslie out to him. All knowledge of Mr. Leslie was denied, and my friend wanted to give the impostor in charge at once, but I asked him to be quiet and sit still in my room while I sent a note up to Mr. Leslie, asking him to come and have a cigarette.

After the curtain was down Mr. Leslie walked in as bold as brass, lighted a cigarette, and prepared for a chat; my friend I could see was being consumed by inward temper, but luckily held his tongue. After some general conversation I asked him how the proprietor of The Morning Wire was, and after other questions I asked him if he knew his son (my friend sitting fuming in an arm-chair).

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Leslie; "great pal of mine; often dine with him; only left him about an hour ago."

"You liar! you swindler!" shouted my friend, unable to resist the temptation. He could keep quiet no longer; he flew into the most violent temper, calling Mr. Leslie every name he could lay his tongue to, and wanting to give him in charge at once.

"Be cool, Leslie," said Mr. Leslie cowering down, begging, praying, offering every apology, was indeed a sad sight.

After we had kept him in agony some time I gave directions that he should not be allowed to return to his box, but politely and firmly shown out of the theater. It seemed that he was the son of a doctor in very fair practice in the south of London, and he confessed that he had been successful at several theaters, but after the shock we gave him I do not think it at all likely he ever tried again to get a box "on the cheap."—Interview in London Tit-Bits.

Japanese Doctors.

A Japanese doctor never dreams of asking a poor patient for a fee. There is a proverb among the medical fraternity of Japan, "When the twin enemies, poverty and disease, invade a home, then the man takes refuge from that same even though it be given him, is a robber."

"Often," said Dr. Matsumoto, "a doctor will not only give his time and his medicines freely to the sufferer, but he will also give him money to tide over his dire necessities. Every physician has his own dispensary, and there are very few apothecary shops in the empire."

"When a rich man calls in a physician he does not expect to be presented with a bill for medical services. In fact, no such thing as a doctor's bill is known in Japan, although nearly all the other modern practices are in vogue there. The doctor never asks for his fee."

The strict honesty of the people makes this unnecessary. When he is through with a patient a present is made to him of whatever sum the patient or his friends may deem to be just compensation. The doctor is supposed to smile, take the fee, bow and thank his patron."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Mistaken Identity.

A man who had evidently arrived by the train walked into a boarding house in a Texas town and asked:

"Is Mr. Day in?"

"What Day, sah?" asked the porter.

"What do I know about him? Do I look like a detective? If Mr. Day isn't in, tell Mr. Week to step out here."

"What week do you refer to, sah?"

"Oh, last week or week before Christmas! Do you take me for an almanac? Who runs this shabaz, anyhow?"

"De Widow Flapjack, sah."

The Baltimore Investigation.

VALLEJO, January 12.—The morning session was almost entirely taken up in specially investigating the case of John Davidson, the only member of the Baltimore crew against whom the Chileans have brought charges in connection with the riot.

Dr. Suit of the Baltimore was called, and after giving testimony about the wounded men, said: "An extremely hostile feeling prevails in Valparaiso against the Americans. Before the riot of October 16, as an instance of this, a high Chilean army officer became furious, when he found that his son, who had been wounded in the battle of Placilla, was being treated by American physicians. He said he would rather his son should die than owe his life to Americans. While in the hospital Turnbull made a statement to me which I took down at the time. It runs as follows: 'I was not intoxicated. I was talking with a friend, an American, and went in a bar-room. They told me there was a crowd outside waiting for me, so I did not go out but waited until I thought they had gone away. Then I went out, and as soon as I was outside, was struck in the head with a stone. I turned and tried to get back into the saloon, but they would not let me in. A mob was around me on all sides and in a short time I was knocked unconscious and only came to in the hospital.'"

A genuine sensation was developed in the investigation to-day, a thing entirely unexpected at this late stage of proceedings. The case had dragged along slowly in the morning session, a number of sailors being recalled to testify as to the behavior of Higgins, Turnbull and Davidson before and during the riot. After the recess, however, surgeons Stitt and White of the Baltimore took the stand, and after testifying to the wounds of the members of the Baltimore crew, they declared that the death of Turnbull was directly caused by neglect in the hospital, where he was carried by the police. The Chileans refused to allow the Baltimore's surgeons to treat their men and declined to do it themselves, except in a very superficial way. For four days the surgeons vainly begged Judge of Crimes Foster to allow them to remove the sailors to the Baltimore, but not till it became probable that Turnbull would soon die would he grant them permission. The men were taken to the ship but it was too late for Turnbull. Blood poisoning set in and Turnbull died five days later. The surgeons were positive that death resulted from neglect and imperfect treatment in the hospital. The Sisters of Charity, who had charge, seemed to regret their inability to help the sailors, but had to obey the orders of their superiors. From a summing up by the surgeons, it appears that as a result of the mob, two sailors of the Baltimore were killed, five were seriously wounded, being disabled for from nine to forty-four days, and twelve received slighter wounds, being disabled for from two to eight days.

TO ABOLISH THE FEE SYSTEM

An effort will be made at this session of Congress to abolish the fee system in Federal offices so far as it is possible to do so. A number of Congressmen, especially those from the South, argue that the fee system results to much hardship to the people in their State, through Deputy Marshals and court officers straining the laws for the purpose of making cases in courts to increase the emoluments of the officers. The advocates of the change urge that the Government would save money by paying salaries and requiring all fees to be turned into the United States Treasury.

One of the attempts to do away with fees and perquisites in Federal offices is of interest to Postmasters of the first class. At present stamped envelopes are furnished to Postmasters at a cost of one-fifth of a cent for each envelope. When the Postmaster sells those in large lots he realizes no profit from the sale, but when he disposes of them singly or in small lots there is a profit of four-fifths of a cent on each envelope, and this profit goes to Postmasters who have fixed salaries.

There is considerable opposition to the proposed change from fees and perquisites to regular salaries, but it is likely to be effected, nevertheless. Too frequently innocent people in many parts of the country, especially in the Southern States, where illicit distilling has been carried on more or less, and furnishes a pretext for arrests and trials in courts, to Deputy Marshals, whose only income is derived from fees.

This injustice to innocent persons should be prevented if possible and the most feasible method of prevention yet suggested is to give the officers salaries instead of paying them fees.

The McDonald Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 12.—Judge Coffey to-day rendered a partial decision in the MacDonald will case, holding that Henry MacDonald, who contested the will, claiming to be a son of the deceased by Mrs. Ransome, better known as Claude Lee, the actress, is in fact a son of Capt. MacDonald. Judge Coffey has yet to decide whether young MacDonald is sole heir to the $250,000.

Big Money for a Horse.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 12.—An evening paper states that J. Malcom Forbes of Boston has agreed to pay Senator Stanford $150,000 for Arion, the two-year-old Electioneer colt who made a world's record of 2:10 3/4 on the Stockton kite track a few months ago.

A Big Gun.

CHICAGO, January 12.—The 12-inch breech loading rifle for the Monterey has arrived here, having been shipped from the Washington Gun Foundry four days ago. This is the first gun of its calibre completed by the navy and is the heaviest piece of ordnance ever transported across the continent, its weight being 101,300 pounds.

At It Again.
WASHINGTON, January 12.—The following cable message from Commander Evans of the gunboat Yorktown, the only United States vessel in Chilean waters, was made public this afternoon: "Valparaiso, January 9. Secretary of the Navy: Yesterday afternoon my gig, while lying off the landing place waiting, was stoned by three men in a crowd of bad characters; no one injured. I immediately visited the senior naval officer of Chile and requested him to notify police authorities. I demanded protection and said if the offense was repeated I would take the matter in my own hands and protect by men with arms. Much regret was expressed by the officer who went at once to the police. To-day I have assurance that the parties will be punished and protection given."

Murder and Robbery.

TUSON, January 12.—Advices from Salmonville say a man and woman were found murdered on Tucson road last night, both shot twice and their heads smashed with an axe. When found a two-year-old child was sitting by the dead body of its mother, its head badly bruised. The child would have died from intense cold had it not been discovered. The woman is supposed to be Hattie Morgan, en route to join her husband at Globe. Their trunks were broken open and plundered.

Tight Lacing Once More.

It is a trite but correct remark that, as the human form has been molded by nature, the best shape is undoubtedly that which she has given it. To endeavor to render it more elegant by artificial means is to change it; to make it much smaller below and much larger above is to destroy its beauty; to keep it cased up in a kind of domestic cuirass is not only to deform it, but to expose the internal parts to serious injury. Under such compression as is commonly practiced by ladies, the development of the bones, which are still tender, does not take place conformably to the intention of nature, because nutrition is necessarily stopped, and they consequently become twisted and deformed.

Those who wear these appliances of tight lacing often complain that they cannot sit upright without them—are sometimes, indeed, compelled to wear them during all the twenty-four hours; a fact which proves to what an extent such articles weaken the muscles of the trunk. The injury does not fall merely on the internal structure of the body, but also on its beauty and on the temper and feelings with which that beauty is associated. Beauty is in reality but another name for expression of countenance, which is the index of sound health, intelligence, good feelings and peace of mind. All are aware that uneasy feelings, existing habitually in the breast, speedily exhibit their signature on the countenance, and that bitter thoughts or a bad temper spoil the human expression of its comeliness and grace.—New York Ledger.

A Negro Servant's Wit.

A copy of the Salem (Mass.) Gazette of Aug. 12, 1788, contains the following anecdote: A gentleman in the state of Connecticut regularly attended public worship on the Lord's day with all his family; on the Sunday evening he always catechised his children and servants on the principles of religion, and what they heard the minister deliver from the pulpit.

He had a negro man who never could remember a note of the sermon, though otherwise smart. At last his master peremptorily told him he would on Monday morning tell him up and flog him. Next Sunday evening, when interrogated, he had forgotten all. On Monday morning his master executes his threat so far as to tie him up. "Oh, master, spare me, for I remember something the minister said."

"What is it?" said the master. The fellow replied, "This much may suffice at this time." The master was so pleased with his wit that he forgave him.

HOOD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SASSAPARILLA
The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health. At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates diseases. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Sarsaparilla, and is worthy your confidence. Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. 100 Doses One Dollar

Royal Baking Powder Is Superior to Every Other.

It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. . . . I will go still further and state that because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Mrs. Harrison's New Dinner Set—A Medical Statistician's Figures—The Inventor of the Knop Sack.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 8, 1892.

EDITOR NEVADA STATE JOURNAL:—The other day while at the White House, I was shown

THE NEW CROCKERY

That had just been received from Limoges, France. This new ware was ordered by Mrs. Harrison for use at dinners in the Executive Mansion. Two hundred and fifty pieces are comprised in the set, and it is intended that the service shall be used for the first time at the Cabinet dinner January 19th. Fifty-six persons can be served with these plates at a course dinner, luncheon and dessert plates. Mrs. Harrison designed the plates, the pattern on the two larger sizes being golden case of tasseled corn upon a background of imperial Prussian blue which forms the rims of the plates. Encircling the inner edge of the rim and inclosed by a gilt band are forty-four gold stars, while in the center of each plate is the coat of arms of the United States. Photographs were made of the famous war eagle Uncle Abe of Wisconsin, to furnish the pattern for the national bird, beneath whose outstretched pinions is the motto "E Pluribus Unum" in raised letters of blue. Upon the outer half of the rim of the luncheon and dessert plates the corn pattern is continued in gold upon a white background while the other half of the rim is a band of Prussian blue containing the same number of stars as are shown in the larger plates, the coat of arms being the only ornamentation in the center. Owing to the fact that questions have been asked by guests at White House dinners as to the history of some of the tableware used and under whose administration it was purchased, Mr. Harrison had stamped upon the back of each piece of this crockery in gilt letters "Harrison, 1892." None of the other crockery hitherto used at the Executive Mansion has been designated, the backs of the plates and dishes being merely a plain unornamented surface.

ARTIFICIAL ARMS AND LEGS.

While talking to a medical department stationer, in the lobby of the Shoreham, the other evening, he gave me some curious figures which are very interesting, on people who lose arms and legs: "From private investigation nearly one thousand accidents occur per day. It is a conservative estimate to place the daily accidents at one hundred per day. As a general statement I should say that fully 250,000 people in the United States are maimed in some fashion. I have studied this matter a long time, and I am convinced of the truth of this assertion. Railroads and machinery, of course, are largely responsible for the aggregate of accidents. A year in which there is a great deal of railroad building is sure to be fruitful of accidents."

"But, Doctor, I am told that artificial arms will last a life time if properly cared for, but after five or six years a leg gives way to the weight and strain and has to be renewed."

"That is not strictly true," he said. "The average artificial leg will last ten years, the average arm, a lifetime. Of course all depends on use and care. We have known patients whose arms and legs have lasted over twenty years, and are still in good condition."

"The ordinary artificial leg is made of wood and rawhide. Paper mache has been tried, but it is not lasting enough."

"The revolution in the method for manufacturing arms and legs will come, I think, with the introduction of aluminum, the lightest and strongest substance known."

"Yes, it takes time to learn how to wear an artificial leg or arm. There is a strange novelty about the new limb that the subject has to overcome. Some patients walk well from the start; others require long practice."

"Fully 85 per cent. of artificial limbs made are legs; 15 per cent. arms. Of legs, 40 per cent. are right, 40 per cent. left, 5 per cent. both right and left. Seventy-eight per cent. of legs amputated are of males, 22 per cent. are of females."

THE INVENTOR OF THE KNOP SACK.

An individual who is of great interest to old soldiers, just at the present time, is Col. O. E. Wood, of Sea Isle City, N. J., who is lying in the German Hospital, Philadelphia, at the point of death from a paralytic stroke.

Col. Wood is about seventy-eight years old, is well known throughout the country, especially in this city. He is the inventor of the knop sack carried during the late war by the Federal army. Merchants and business men throughout the civilized world can thank him for originating this notice, now printed on envelopes: "If not delivered in — days return to —"

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Receipts, Shipments and Top Prices. The Chicago Live Stock Report in reviewing the market for 1891, says:

The largest receipts in one month at Chicago during 1891 were as follows: Cattle 373,338 head in October; calves 381,398 head in September; hogs 1,068,362 head in December; sheep 208,924 head in April.

The receipts of stock at Chicago for 1891 show a decrease of 29,130 head from 1890, while the shipments decreased 241,649 head, making an increase for home consumption of 212,516 head, as compared with the year 1890.

The receipts of stock at Chicago for the year 1891 were 3,250,359 cattle, 205,383 calves, 8,606,805 hogs, and 29,130 sheep, and an increase of 30,358 calves and 936,977 hogs as compared with the year 1890.

Total shipments of live stock from Chicago for 1891 were 1,068,284 cattle, 49,381 calves, 2,962,514 hogs and 688,205 sheep, a decrease of 194,045 cattle, 13,135 calves, and 241,140 sheep, and an increase of 978,814 hogs as compared with 1890.

The top prices for native steers at Chicago during 1891 were as follows: January $5.55; February $5.60; March $6.35; April $6.35; May $6.50; June $6.35; July $6.40; August $6.35; September $6.40; October $6.60; November $6.40; December $7.15.

The following were the top prices for January 7, 1892, and the relative prices of corresponding date in 1891: Bees $5.00, one year ago $5.45; hogs $4.20, one year ago $3.75; sheep $5.50, one year ago $5.25; lambs $6.30, one year ago $6.25; May pork $11.40, one year ago $11.45; May lard $6.45, one year ago $6.45; May ribs $5.72 1/2, one year ago $5.75; May corn 41 1/4 cts., one year ago 53 1/4 cts.; cash corn 39 1/2 cts., one year ago 49 1/2 cts.

The International League Press Club. The International League Press Club passed through Reno last evening in a special train of six cars. Every one of the cars was dark with the exception of the Pullman dining car, wherein had congregated nearly all the traveling members. They were having a genuine high jinks, and one of the club, a man with a three-decker brow and hair a la Oscar Wilde, was making an after dinner speech. His eyes rolled and his hands waved to the great edification of the audience of unsophisticated Nevadans who were collected on the outside; but otherwise the club totally ignored the fact that they were in Reno. Perhaps none of them ever thought of the fact and will wake up to the realization of what they have missed when it is too late.

Wild Fowl on the River.

Wild fowl may be seen almost every day on the river above the dam in Powning's Addition. The city ordinance against shooting within the town limits is violated almost daily by boys and older men who are anxious to get a shot at the ducks. The small boy with the twenty-two rifle is particularly numerous, and the reckless manner in which he exercises his marksmanship leaves it only a matter of time until some one will get hurt. It seems a shame to disturb the pretty wild fowl which thus come within the limits of the town trustfully innocent of the neighborhood of danger. There is a pleasure in seeing them floating on the river to any one who has any love for such things that should alone be considered sufficient to prevent them being disturbed.

Good for Reno.

WASHINGTON, January 12.—Among the bills favorably reported by the Senate Committee to day was one for the erection of a public building in Reno, Nevada, for which $75,000 is appropriated.

A Credit to the Publishers.

The New Year's edition of the Reno Journal was a fine number, and a credit to the publishers and the town of Reno.—Eiko Free Press.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

The Spleen.

—not the ill humor you feel like venting upon some offender, but the spleen near the stomach, which supplies the proper amount of blood to the stomach during digestion. But both are affected by a torpid liver. A torpid liver excites the spleen (ill humor) and destroys the bodily organs; but an active liver, promoted by Simpsom's Liver Regulator, destroys the spleen (ill humor) and excites to right action the digestive powers—then no more dyspepsia, constipation or biliousness.
